Academic and Philosophical Career
Radhakrishnan was a towering academic figure, holding professorships at Mysore University, Calcutta University, and the University of Oxford. He specialized in comparative religion and philosophy, arguing that all religions lead to the same spiritual goal. His major works, including Indian Philosophy and The Hindu View of Life, brought Indian intellectual traditions to the Western world.
Political Career and Legacy
Radhakrishnan served as the Indian Ambassador to the Soviet Union (1948-1952) before becoming the first Vice President. He was elected as the second President of India in 1962, a position he held until 1967. When friends asked to celebrate his birthday, he proposed it be observed as Teacher's Day, highlighting the role of teachers in building a nation
